Witte Not a Plenipotentiary.

In the Slavo, which appears this morning, is an interview with M. De Witte, which apparently takes him out of the list of possible peace envoys, if it is authentic.

M. Witte is quoted as taking a gloomy view of the situation. After declaring he will not be one of the envoys, because Lamsdorf does not wish him, and because he would only accept under protest, M. Witte is quoted:

"As for peace, Japan will not even be willing to discuss a basis which would not insure peace for at least fifty years. Her conditions doubtless have also considerably increased. She will, of course, agree to open negotiations with her own soil without mediators with a person whom Russia will clothe with special powers."

"Russia could prolong the war for five years in the hope of coming out victorious were it not for the events in the interior to which they are closing their eyes and stopping their ears and trying to know nothing about. Here lies the horror of the present situation in Russia."

"Every hour of delay is fraught with danger—down, down, lower and lower, step by step."

Linevitch Surrounded.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 14.—The Gazette today publishes a sensational interview with the secretary of the Chinese legation, to the effect that Russia must conclude immediate peace, as General Linevitch's army is entirely surrounded.

The reactionary press continues to put all obstacles in the way of peace. The Soviet today attacks America for the offer of President Roosevelt in the interests of peace.

Only the boundless vanity of President Roosevelt, it says, could have induced the United States to attempt to deceive Russia and the rest of the world.

"WHAT A CRIME"

To Talk Against Coffee.

To an ambitious student an ailment that interferes with school and study is very hard to bear.

A bright young girl in Detroit who had been poisoned by coffee, is now pursuing her studies in perfect health. Probable the coffee champions feel she should have continued to suffer and kept on with the coffee, but now, and then there are self-willed creatures who insist on getting well by leaving off coffee.

"From early childhood till a year ago I was in the habit of drinking three or four cups of coffee every day."

"As I grew older, the bad effects began to show themselves, although I had no idea that it was coffee that was doing the mischief. I became very nervous, and suffered so much from severe headaches that I lost much valuable time from my school and studies. The doctor could give me no relief—he probably did not suspect the coffee any more than I did."

"One day I went to visit a friend, and the coffee they had on their table tasted so good that I had a kind of it, and they told me it was Postum Food Coffee. My friend said that her mother had been a nervous wreck from drinking the old kind of coffee, but had been restored to health by quitting it and drinking Postum. The whole family were enthusiastic about Postum and advised me to try it."

"I am glad they did; for it has given me back my health. At first I did not boil it enough and did not like it, but we soon learned how to make it, and now we all prefer it to the kind I had discovered that to stir a bubble of cream in the warm milk we use instead of cream Food Coffee."

"From the first day I began to use Postum Coffee (I quit the old kind altogether) my health began to improve. My headaches ceased on the third day and have never returned, my nervousness has completely disappeared, my brain seems invigorated and strengthened, and I am now able to study from 4 to 5 hours daily, outside of school, and feel no bad effects from it."

"My aunt was sick for five years from coffee poisoning. It was hard work to get her to give up the beverage, but when she did I began to use Postum Food Coffee, she got well almost at once, and is now enjoying fine health. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

"Ten days' trial proves. There's a reason."

PREMIER DELYANNIS SABBED BY GAMBLER

Grecian Prime Minister Murdered as He Alighted From Carriage at Parliament Building—Crime Investigated by Revenge.

ATHENS, June 14.—The King has appointed M. Gounaris, the minister of finance, to succeed Prime Minister Delyannis, who was stabbed in the abdomen yesterday afternoon by a man named Gherakaris as he was about to enter the parliament building, and died half an hour later.

M. Delyannis had arrived in his private carriage at the main entrance of the building, when a well-dressed bystander advanced, smiling and bowing, and opened the carriage door as if to save the aged minister trouble. He held the door open and M. Delyannis alighted, thanking him for his courtesy, but he was no sooner on his feet than the man drew a dagger from the breast pocket of his coat and plunged it deep into his abdomen with terrible force.

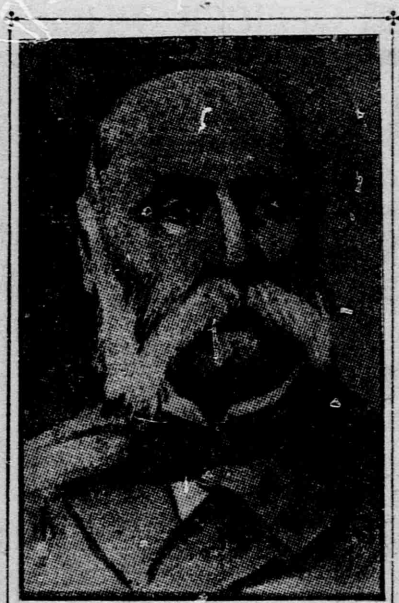

The premier fell with a groan. By-standers rushed forward, and the assassin tried to escape, but he was instantly seized. He would have been battered to death if the police had not promptly rescued him.

M. Delyannis was carried in an unconscious condition to a private room in the parliament building. Physicians were hastily summoned, but when they arrived they saw immediately that he was past recovery. They did their best to staunch the internal hemorrhage, but their efforts failed.

There was a story of revenge. The assassin is a notorious professional gambler, the ex-tenant of a gambling house, who, by recent rigorous legislation repressing such places, was deprived of his occupation. M. Delyannis was responsible for the abolition of this measure.

Gherakaris made no secret of the motive for the crime, saying that M. Delyannis had ruined him. Police inquiries revealed that Gherakaris had already been sentenced to eighteen years imprisonment for murdering his wife.

The public funeral of the dead prime minister will be held on Friday.

SAVES LIVES OF MOTHER AND CHILD

ing its clothes snugly around it to shield it from the flames, she dashed to the center front window, and stepped out on the little ledge directly over the entrance to her husband's place of business.

Segloff, who conducts a haberdashery at 362 M street northwest, next door to the luncheon room, was standing in front of his establishment and saw the hysterical woman on the ledge. Realizing that a moment meant a life, he burst through the door and bounded up the steps leading to the room which the mother had just left.

He was almost overcome by the heat and smoke in the hall and on the steps, but continued on until he reached the woman's side. She had made up her mind to jump, and it was with great reluctance that she halted at Segloff's command.

The sleeping baby was nestled close to her bosom. The mother, scarcely able to stand, supported herself by holding on to the side of the window. Segloff wrestled the infant from her grasp, forced her into the room and then climbed out on the ledge.

As he stepped upon this hazardous perch, three ladder were thrown against it. A man climbed to the top of the shortest ladder, and to him Segloff passed the infant. The child was turned over to a woman who lived on the east side of the luncheon room.

Mother Faints.

When Mrs. Marcy released her hold on her prone husband she swooned and fell to the floor. Segloff went back into the room and got her out for fear she would be suffocated by the smoke. Appreciating the fact that he would not have time to accomplish the feat by himself he called for assistance.

Sergeant Schneider and Policeman Furr, both near the luncheon room when the fire broke out, entered the house through the hallway and in a few seconds were at the unconscious woman's side. They picked her up bodily and carried her to the street and into Segloff's store, where she was revived.

After the firemen had assisted themselves that there was no more fire nor danger of a second outbreak, they left the building. Mrs. Marcy was assisted to her apartments.

Her condition was thought to be serious, and Dr. R. C. McElroy, of Georgetown, was summoned. He made an examination and afterward stated that she was in a critical state and the child might prove too much for her. The baby was then removed to the home of its mother. It suffered little from the rough handling it experienced.

The loss in the luncheon room was estimated at $100. It is said this is covered by insurance. About two months ago fire visited the same place but did very little damage. It was caused by a time was caused by rats gnawing matches, and was discovered by a pedestrian passing the door, who, seeing the bright red glare in the rear of the place, turned in an alarm.

TALK OF SPORTS AT WHITE HOUSE

Roosevelt, Needham, and Moody Participate.

PRaise FOR AMATEURISM

Mr. Moody Declares Washington as Good an Athletic City as Any in Country.

A lively discussion on amateur athletics took place at the White House this morning when President Roosevelt received Charles Needham, who is at present engaged upon a series of articles on professionalism in college athletics.

While Mr. Needham was with the President Attorney General Moody came in. Mr. Moody played shortstop on the Harvard baseball team and is keenly interested in all athletics.

The President has read Mr. Needham's articles and is an ardent advocate of the strictest amateurism, while Mr. Moody shares his views on the subject, and they talked matters over at length.

As he left the White House the Attorney General chatted on athletic matters and, during the course of his conversation, paid a high compliment to the youth of Washington.

"You know the old and walk about the city a good deal," he said, "and I have come to the conclusion that Washington is about as good an athletic city as there is in this country. You may go where you please on spring and summer afternoons and you are sure to run across dozens of baseball games going on. There is nothing I enjoy seeing more than the White Lot covered with baseball players in the afternoons. There are always two or three games going on, with players whose ages run all the way from thirteen to fourteen years. It is a great thing for a city to have all its youth out in the open, building up strength and health that way."
